8. CORRESPONDENCE

- 8.1 Summary of Objections: regarding prohibition of parking in Bridge Street and Abbey Road Junction; from Ceredigion County Council (CCC). It was RESOLVED to arrange a site meeting, between a delegation of the Community Council and Mr Tom Delph-Januirek CCC on Monday 24th September 2018, to discuss the matter further.
- 8.2 Letter: Objection to the Order: Ceredigion County Council (Prohibition and Restriction of Waiting and Loading and Unloading (any time)) Order 2018 – CE58-F23 between Talwrn/ Strata House and Capel Rhydfendigaid on the west side of Bridge Street, and Teifi View/Islwyn on its eastern side from an owner of a property in Bridge Street, Ponrhydfendigaid. The property and other properties in the area had no parking provision. Alternative parking had been sought, without success and subsequently the vehicle/s of the person in question was/were parked on the highway ... “It may be in the interests of the wider community to restrict parking on this section of Bridge Street on the basis of the free and thus faster flow of traffic but the current “responsible parking”, together with the adjacent width and give-way restriction, do enforce slower and thus safer traffic movement through this part of the village..... since the creation of the footpath and adjacent width and give-way restriction I have not been aware of significant problems arising from parking at this location. Through traffic is rarely delayed and if so, then only for a couple of minutes.”
- He enquired whether it would be feasible to arrange a few parking spaces for the benefit of those properties, which will lose their parking as a result of the proposed restrictions. He proposed the introduction of a residents' parking provision in the restricted area now used by those without off-street parking or securing an alternative area of parking. The comments were noted and would be raised at the site meeting of the 24.09.18.
- 8.3 Hywel Dda University Health Board: “Our Big NHS Change: Communities’ Voice on Health and Care”: Following the 12 week public consultation, which ran between April and July 2018 into the future of NHS Health and Care services, an independent report has been received, detailing the extent and scope of views received from communities in mid and west Wales. The Report will be formally received by the Health Board at an extraordinary meeting due to be held and webcast from Carmarthenshire County Council’s Chambers on Wednesday 26th September 2018, where a future service model will be discussed. There had been support for the case for change, strengthening community models, separating community models, separating planned and urgent care (but most suggesting this should be done on the same site) and provision of a new hospital in the south of the Hywel Dda area. There had been considerable disagreement around locations of proposed community hubs and hospitals, with recurring suggestions for hubs to be considered in Milford Haven/ Neyland, Fishguard/Goodwick, Crymych, Lampeter and Llandysul and concern generally over loss of community beds, particularly in regards to Amman Valley Hospital.

There had been a high level of disagreement over the proposed location for a new urgent and emergency care hospital. Feedback demonstrated competing arguments for building the new hospital near Carmarthen, due to population density both from the town itself and the central location between Haverfordwest and Llanelli; and further west given that access from these locations is already an important recognised issue.

Key themes of concern have emerged, including travel and access to services, particularly for the more vulnerable or isolated; the infrastructure of roads and public transport limitations; resourcing requirements including costs and staffing; regional impacts, such as those on other health boards and the Welsh Ambulance Services NHS Trust, and the ability to deliver the community and primary care required for such a model to work, amongst others.

The Health Board is now going through a period of “conscientious consideration” where it will consider views and implications heard in consultation and assess any alternative options put forward, before re-evaluating and proposing a future service model.

The full report and executive summary are available on the Health Board’s consultation web resource at www.hywelddahb.wales.nhs.uk/hddchange.
